"SEOVEC's districts will have the best, most up-to-date and complete software available on the market today," said Jimmy Battrell, CEO and Director of SEOVEC. "We allowed our districts to make the decision. We showed them the top three SIS packages that were being used around the state. Infinite Campus was the most complete and modern package of the three."

Infinite Campus is a living solution that is constantly enhanced without additional cost to customers. As a result, district-level customers continue to use the same product today as they did when they first became customers, realizing incremental product improvements while avoiding costly upgrades, fees, retraining, and confusion.

"We are pleased the SEOVEC will be providing services and support for our Infinite Campus customers in their region," said Mike Palmer, Eastern Regional Sales Manager. "Their frontline training, support and implementation services provides our customers with a first call for support and onsite training sessions. This allows our Ohio customers to focus on their students and continue their excellent record of achievement."

In today's uncertain environment of transitions and acquisitions, Infinite Campus is unique. The company's founder, Charlie Kratsch, has been CEO since its inception in 1996. Infinite Campus remains a privately held company, focused on customer retention by continuous innovation and customer service.
